D.C. Vote Bill Flops In House

Lack of consensus on gun amendment stalls measure

Congressional leaders abandoned efforts Tuesday to win passage of the D.C. voting rights bill after city leaders refused to withdraw their opposition to an amendment that would do away with the District's strict gun-control laws.

The bill, which would give the District a voting member in the House of Representatives and add a new member from Utah, has languished on Capitol Hill since the House and Senate approved the gun amendment in February.

Hoyer

Many city leaders, as well as Delegate Eleanor Holmes Norton, a Democrat, fiercely opposed the gun amendment, but Democratic leaders in Congress were unable to round up enough votes to remove it.

At a press conference, House Majority Leader Steny Hoyer, D-Md., said he was giving up all hope of getting a D.C. voting rights bill approved anytime soon.

"There is not a consensus among the leadership of the District of Columbia on this issue, as I understand it. And, as a result, I don't think we're going to be able to move the bill at this point in time," Hoyer said.

Norton said she remains optimistic there will be other opportunities to bring up the bill. TIM CRAIG, NIKITA STEWART AND PAUL KANE (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Pilot: Bird Warnings Don't Help

Sullenberger says system isn't specific enough to be useful

WASHINGTON | On takeoff, the pilot of Flight 1549 remarked on two things almost immediately: a breathtaking view of the Hudson River and the sickening thump of birds hitting his engines. Warnings about the birds probably would not have helped, Capt.

Chesley Sullenberger told federal safety officials Tuesday.

"In my experience, the warnings we get are general in nature and not specific, and therefore have limited usefulness," Sullenberger said during a hearing by the National Transportation Safety Board.

The board began three days of hearings into safety issues arising from the Jan. 15 accident, including efforts to prevent bird strikes and the ability of aircraft engines to withstand collisions with large birds. JOAN LOWY (AP)

Gitmo Detainee Transferred to U.S.

Suspect in embassy bombings pleads not guilty in N.Y.C. court

NEW YORK | Under heavy guard, a Guantanamo Bay detainee walked into a civilian U.S. courtroom for the first time Tuesday, underscoring the Obama administration's determination to close the Cuban prison and hold trials here despite Republican alarms about bringing terror suspects to America.

Ahmed Ghailani, a Tanzanian accused in two American Embassy bombings a decade ago, pleaded not guilty — in English — in a brief but historic federal court hearing that transported him from open-ended military detention to the civilian criminal justice system.

President Obama has said keeping Ghailani from coming to the United States "would prevent his trial and conviction." Taking a different stance, House Republican leader John Boehner of Ohio labeled Tuesday's move "the first step in the Democrats' plan to import terrorists into America."

Ghailani, accused of being a bomb-maker, document forger and aide to Osama bin Laden, was brought to New York to await trial in connection with al-Qaeda bombings that killed 224 people at the U.S. embassies in Tanzania and Kenya in 1998.

Ghailani's trial will be an important test case for Obama's plan to close the detention center at Guantanamo and bring some of the terror suspects there to trial.

Justice Department officials would not say Tuesday what would be done with Ghailani if he were acquitted, but in past cases a non-citizen defendant would be turned over to immigration authorities for deportation.

Republicans have repeatedly contended that transferring terrorist suspects to U.S. soil will threaten public safety.

But if Ghailani can be handled without serious incident in New York and elsewhere, Congress may rethink its refusal to fund the closing of Guantanamo. The move also could bolster Obama's efforts to persuade other nations to accept some detainees from the prison. DEVLIN BARRETT (AP)

Slain Doc's Clinic to Close

Kan. abortion center will not reopen after death of George Tiller

WICHITA, KAN. | The Wichita clinic of slain abortion provider George Tiller, one of only a handful of clinics in the country that provides third-term abortions, will be permanently closed, his family said Tuesday.

Operations at Women's Health Care Services Inc. had been suspended since Tiller's death last month, and the clinic's future was uncertain. In a statement released by attorneys, Tiller's family said it will close permanently, and relatives would honor Tiller with charitable activities instead.

"We are proud of the service and courage shown by our husband and father, and know that women's health care needs have been met because of his dedication and service," the family said.

Tiller was fatally shot May 31 while serving as an usher at the Lutheran church in Wichita that he regularly attended. Abortion opponent Scott Roeder, 51, is being held on charges of first-degree murder and aggravated assault in Tiller's death.

Dr. Warren Hern, one of the few remaining doctors in the country who performs late-term abortions, said the closure of the clinic was an "outrage" and he feels the loss for Tiller's family and the patients he served. ROXANA HEGEMAN (AP) pitals, including three firefighters who needed medical attention after inhaling ammonia gases that left a distinct scent around the sprawling ConAgra Foods Inc. plant just south of Raleigh.

The explosion left gaping holes in the roof. An exterior wall collapsed, smashing cars parked next to the 500,000-square-foot building. Authorities could not say exactly where in the plant the blast happened or what caused it.

"I was getting ready to pick up a piece of meat off the line and I felt it — the percussion. And you could feel it in my chest and my ears popped," said worker Chris Woods. "One of the guys I was working with got blown back — his hat flew backwards."

Four people were in critical condition at UNC Hospitals with burns covering between 40 percent and 60 percent of their bodies, said Dr. Charles Cairns, professor and chairman of the department of emergency medicine at the University of North Carolina.

Reformist Shakes Up Iran's Vote

Candidate generates excitement ahead of presidential election

TEHRAN, IRAN | Persian hip-hop thumps from car speakers and men with spiked hair dance in the streets.

It's another night and another campaign rally-turned-party for their unlikely hero: a reformist from the early years of the Islamic Revolution who is now seen as their best hope to defeat hard-line President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad.

But while Mir Hossein Mousavi generates the noise, passion and electricity in Tehran, Ahmadinejad has the backing of the powerful Islamic establishment and deep support in the countryside, leaving Friday's vote too close to call.

What's left in the final days before the key election is a political end game that's fundamentally rewritten the rules of Iranian campaigns. The attacks have been nastier, the crowds wilder and the media war more acute than any previous race.

Iran faces some pivotal decisions Friday, including whether to agree to international demands to suspend its uranium enrichment program, and how to respond to President Obama's call for dialogue. ANNA JOHNSON (AP)

Suicide Blast Hits Pakistani Hotel

At least 11 are killed, 70 wounded in attack on luxury compound

PESHAWAR, PAKISTAN | Suicide attackers shot their way past guards and set off a massive blast Tuesday outside a luxury hotel where foreigners and well-to-do Pakistanis mixed, killing at least 11 people and wounding 70, officials said.

The bombers struck the Pearl Continental Hotel at about 10 p.m., when nightlife was still in swing. The attack reduced a section of the hotel to concrete rubble and twisted steel and left a huge crater in a parking lot.

The blast came a week after Taliban leaders warned they would carry out major attacks in large cities in retaliation for an army offensive to reclaim the nearby Swat Valley region from the militants. No claim surfaced immediately for the bombing in Peshawar, the northwest's largest city with about 2.2 million people.

Earlier in the day, officials said Pakistan's military engaged militants on two fronts elsewhere in the northwest. The army dispatched helicopter gunships in support of citizens fighting the Taliban in one district and used artillery fire against militants in another after sympathetic tribal elders refused to hand them over.

Neither operation was anywhere near the size of the military's offensive in the Swat Valley, where 15,000 troops have battled up to 7,000 Taliban fighters.

Police official Liaqat Ali said witnesses gave vivid accounts of the attack. Three men in a pickup truck approached the hotel's main gate, opened fire at security guards, drove inside and detonated the bomb close to the building, Ali said. A senior police officer, Shafqatullah Malik, estimated it contained more than half a ton of explosives.

The chaotic scene echoed a bombing last year at Islamabad's Marriott Hotel that killed more than 50 people. Both hotels were favored places for foreigners. RIAZ KHAN (AP)

Iraqi Tied to 5 U.S. Deaths Is Freed

Militant's release may help liberate 5 British hostages in exchange

BAGHDAD | The surprise release of a Shiite militant linked to the killing of five U.S. soldiers in Iraq is part of a high-stakes gambit that could result in freedom for five British hostages and a political role for a major Shiite extremist group with reputed ties to Iran.

Laith al-Khazali, a leading figure in the Asaib al-Haq, or League of the Righteous, was freed from U.S. custody over the weekend and taken to his home in Baghdad, said Iraqi officials involved in negotiations for his release.

Al-Khazali and his brother Qais were arrested in March 2007 and accused of organizing a bold raid on a local government headquarters in Karbala that killed five U.S. soldiers on Jan. 20, 2007.

Danny Chism, whose son, Spc. Johnathan Bryan Chism, was among the Americans killed, was outraged to hear that al-Khazali had been released. "Somebody needs to answer for it," he said from his home in Louisiana.

But the al-Khazali brothers' case has morphed beyond the attack into a major political issue.

Two months after the brothers were arrested, gunmen thought to be from the League seized British management consultant Peter Moore and four of his bodyguards from the Finance Ministry compound in Baghdad.

Secret negotiations have been under way for months for their release in exchange for freedom for the al-Khazali brothers and others from the League, one of the Shiite "special groups" that the U.S. thinks are backed by Iran. QASSIM

Airlines Replace Monitors

Airspeed equipment in plane may have led to Air France disaster

RECIFE, BRAZIL | Air France and other airlines moved Tuesday to replace speed monitors suspected of feeding false information to the computers of Flight 447 and leading to a series of failures that broke the plane apart over the Atlantic Ocean.

A total of 28 bodies have been recovered; 200 others have yet to be found. Soldiers and medical personnel carried off the remains in body bags on the Fernando de Noronha archipelago, to be flown to the coastal city of Recife, where experts will try to identify them using DNA and photos.

Identifying the bodies, looking at where they were seated on the plane and studying their injuries could provide clues to causes of the May 31 disaster, said Peter Goelz, a former managing director of the National Transportation Safety Board.

With the plane's data recorders

still apparently deep in the ocean, investigators have focused on the possibility that external speed monitors — Pitot tubes — iced over and gave false readings to the plane's computers in a thunderstorm.

Air France said it began replacing the Pitot tubes on its A330 and A340 jets in May after pilots reported several incidents of icing leading to a loss of airspeed data.

The monitors had not yet been replaced on the A330 that was destroyed en route from Rio de Janeiro to Paris.

"Other planes that have experienced incorrect airspeed indications have had the same Pitots. And airplanes with the new Pitot tubes have never had such problems," said Air France pilot Eric Derivry. GREG KELLER (AP)

CAPE TOWN, SOUTH AFRICA | The number of new HIV infections among South African teens has dropped significantly, prompting hope that national efforts to tackle the epidemic have finally turned a corner after years of delay.

A report by the Human Sciences Research Council released Tuesday said that although young people continue to have multiple sexual partners — which drives South Africa's epidemic — they are increasingly heeding advice to use a condom.

"There is clearly light at the end of the tunnel," said Health Minister Dr Aaron Motsoaledi.

By the end of 2007, new HIV infections peaked at 1,000 — with nearly 1,000 deaths from AIDS every day.

The report said HIV prevalence in children between 2 and 14 fell from 5.6 percent in 2002 to 2.5 percent last year, mainly thanks to the spread of drugs to prevent women from passing on the virus to their children.

Nearly one-third of women ages 20 to 34 are infected with the virus, the report said. Infection rates peak later in men. CLARE NULLIS (AP)

Swine Flu Nears Pandemic Level

WHO says the virus' spread in Australia may spur declaration

GENEVA | The World Health Organization said Tuesday a spike in swine flu cases in Australia may push it to finally announce the first flu pandemic in 41 years. It also expressed concern about an unusual rise in severe illness from the disease in Canada.

WHO flu chief Keiji Fukuda said the agency wanted to avoid "adverse effects" if it announces a global outbreak of swine flu. Fukuda said people might panic or governments might take inappropriate actions in the case of a pandemic.

Some experts think the world already is in a pandemic and that WHO has caved in to requests that a declaration be postponed.

Hong Kong Acid Attack Hurts 24

HONG KONG | An unidentified assailant hurled acid in a busy Hong Kong shopping district, injuring 24 pedestrians including a 4-year old girl, police said Tuesday. It was the third in a series of acid attacks that have hurt about 100 people.

Police said a bottle of corrosive liquid was thrown on a crowd in the Mong Kok district on Monday night. None of the victims, ages 4 to 49, were seriously burned.

Hong Kong leader Donald Tsang condemned the attack, saying it was "cold-blooded and evil." Investigators have posted a $116,000 reward for information leading to an arrest. (AP)

Rate Dips Below 50 Percent

The on-time graduation rate for D.C. public schools has fallen below 50 percent, according to a new study, while the rates for Maryland and Virginia have not improved since the mid-1990s. The study, released Tuesday by researchers affiliated with the trade publication Education Week, examined data from 1996 to 2006. MICHAEL

U.S. Park Police say a man has died after officers shot at him in Northeast Washington. Officials say four Park Police detectives assigned to the Safe Streets Task Force were investigating a tip about someone with a gun in the 1200 block of Holbrook Street on Monday night. They found the suspect and followed him into an alley. The detectives fired at the man, who was taken to a hospital, where he died. (AP)

Storms Interfere in Tight Va. Race

Inclement weather hurts voter turnout in gubernatorial primary

Voters across Virginia braved thunder, wind and heavy rain to head for the polls Tuesday in a Democratic primary election that, as expected, appeared to be drawing few voters, adding to a sense of unpredictability in a previously wide-open, three-way gubernatorial race.

Bad weather apparently caused only minor issues across the state, temporarily knocking out power at polling places in Prince William and Arlington counties. But election officials reported a dismally low turnout across Virginia — except near Washington, where voters were showing up in greater numbers than expected.

"Falls Church has come in at 7 percent voter turnout so far, which is pretty high, and it's 6 percent for Arlington," Nancy Rodrigues, secretary of the State Board of Elections, said just after noon. "The rest of the state is, er, low."

Candidates for the top spot on the Democratic ticket were state Sen. R. Creigh Deeds, former Alexandria delegate Brian Moran and former Democratic National Committee chairman Terry McAuliffe.

The winner will face Republican Robert F. McDonnell in the general election.

Campaign workers and outside observers have said for weeks that a key to this primary is mobilizing reliable voters rather than drawing those who are not used to casting ballots in preliminary races. But that was hard to do in the early morning hours, as soaking rain, hail, thunder and lightning affected conditions and led the National Weather Service to urge people to stay indoors.

The storms caused only minor glitches for voters, cutting power at four polling places across the state but not affecting voting, state election officials said. AMY GARDNER (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Students rally against plastic trays in socially aware Takoma Park

Casting about for a cause, the Young Activist Club at Piney Branch Elementary settled on something close at hand: the hundreds of polystyrene trays and plastic utensils discarded daily in the school cafeteria.

The students from Takoma Park, known as one of the D.C. region's most socially conscious communities, have raised $9,000 from foundations and sympathetic residents to purchase a dishwasher, washable flatware and other supplies so they can banish Styrofoam from their school. But they have met unexpected resistance from a school system in which food service operations rely on the convenience and disposability of plastic.

"The cost and repair of dish-washers would raise the cost of a meal, which is not a good thing to do," said Joseph Lavorgna, acting director of facilities management for Montgomery County schools.

Students have won over their principal, the school lunch lady and the City Council, which last year banned the use of Takoma Park funds to purchase small plastic water bottles. About 20 children converged on council chambers Monday night and spoke beside a stack of disposable trays.

The Takoma Park students calculate that their school spends $3,700 a year on disposable trays and $1,600 on plastic cutlery. They estimate it would cost between $2,000 and $5,000 to buy a rebuilt dishwasher, $1,500 to buy enough hard plastic trays for the 500 students and $400 to $600 for washable flatware. They also say it could cost $5,000 a year to pay someone to operate the dishwasher.

Montgomery County school board member Christopher Barclay, who lives in Takoma Park, said he is "more than willing" to look at the student proposal. But "it has to be cost-effective," he said.

10 Banks Ready to Return Bailouts

Treasury Department will be repaid $68B of government funds

WASHINGTON | Ten of the nation's largest banks were given the green light Tuesday to repay $68 billion in government bailout money, freeing them from restrictions on executive compensation that they say are making it hard to keep their top-performing executives.

The Treasury Department said the banks had been approved to repay the money they received from the Troubled Asset Relief Program created by Congress in October at the height of the finan-

BB&T, Capital One, Morgan Stanley and JPMorgan Chase are among the banks that will be permitted to return their bailout money to the federal government.

PAYBACK TIME

The amounts the banks could repay to the government are:

- 1 JPMorgan: $25 billion
- 2 Morgan Stanley: $10 billion
- 3 Goldman Sachs: $10 billion
- 4 U.S. Bancorp: $6.6 billion
- 5 Capital One: $3.6 billion
- 6 American Express: $3.4 billion
- 7 BB&T: $3.1 billion
- 8 Bank of N.Y. Mellon: $3 billion
- 9 Northern Trust: $1.6 billion
- 10 State Street: $2 billion money shows some stability has returned to the system but caution that the crisis isn't over.

All eight banks that took TARP money and last month passed government "stress tests" confirmed they received permission to repay the bailout funds.

Morgan Stanley did not pass the government test but on Tuesday said it had raised enough capital quickly and was approved to repay its TARP money.

Northern Trust Corp. was not among the 19 banks subjected to stress tests, but the company said it also had received permission to repay the bailout funds.

Former Exec at AT&T Will Take Reins of GM

New chairman will lead company after it exits bankruptcy

DETROIT | A former CEO and chairman of telecommunications giant AT&T Inc. will lead General Motors Corp.'s board after the automaker emerges from bankruptcy protection, GM said Tuesday.

Edward Whitacre Jr., 67, eventually will replace Kent Kresa, who will remain GM's interim chairman until the reorganized automaker emerges as a new company that's majority-owned by the U.S. government.

Whitacre was chairman and chief executive of AT&T and its predecessor companies from 1990 to 2007. During his tenure, he led the company through several acquisitions and sales.

Edward Whitacre Jr. was chairman and CEO of AT&T from 1990 to 2007.

Kresa said he picked Whitacre with input from Steven Rattner, chairman of the Treasury Department's auto task force. The government, he said, wants to be very involved in picking GM's board but does not want to be part of GM's day-to-day operations.

Whitacre, Kresa said, had experience that was attractive to the government. TOM KRISHER (AP)

Nationals Turn to Pitchers in Draft

Washington 'thrilled' to take hard-throwing Strasburg at No. 1

NATIONALS | The Washington Nationals selected pitcher Stephen Strasburg with the first pick in baseball's amateur draft Tuesday night.

Considered one of the most talented prospects in the event's 45-year history, Strasburg went 13-1 with a 1.32 ERA this season for San Diego State, leading the Aztecs to their first postseason berth since 1991.

Featuring a fastball that has been clocked at 102 mph, Strasburg leads Division I pitchers with 195 strikeouts in 109 innings. He was the only amateur on the U.S. Olympic baseball team that won a bronze medal in Beijing last summer.

"We are thrilled to select someone with the special talents that Stephen possesses," Nationals acting general manager Mike Rizzo said in a statement. "Those talents have long been on our radar, and Stephen's domination at San Diego State and vast experiences gained with Team USA last summer have done nothing to change our thoughts about his abilities."

Stephen Strasburg, considered to be, by far, the best prospect in the draft, was selected No. 1 overall by the Nats on Tuesday.

Signing the right-hander could be a challenge for the Nationals, however, because agent Scott Boras is sure to seek a record contract.

With the 10th pick, Washington took another pitcher: Stanford University right-handed closer Drew Storen, thought to be one of the best closers in college baseball.

The Baltimore Orioles, with the No. 5 pick, selected right-handed high school pitcher Matt Hobbard, a 6-foot-4, 245-pounder from Norco High School in California. (AP)

Mystics Revved Up to Face Shock

Rejuvenated squad can stay perfect with win against Detroit

MYSTICS | Nakia Sanford paused to consider what a win this early in the season against the Detroit Shock might mean to the new, rejuvenated and overhauled Washington Mystics. Perhaps not that much, the seven-year WNBA veteran said. After all there are a lot of young faces on this team. For the older players, though, the possibility of defeating the defending champions and starting the year 3-0 after a win in Detroit is tantalizing.

Consider first that the Mystics have not won at the Palace of Auburn Hills since June 24, 2005, a lone 69-55 victory in seven trips to Detroit over the past four seasons. During that same span, Washington has defeated the Shock just five out of the teams'

15 total meetings. On Wednesday, the Mystics have a chance to improve upon their first 2-0 start in franchise history when they face a Shock team that is without three of their top-four post players.

"A win on the road in Detroit would be big. I don't care how beat-up they are," Sanford said. "They could be out there on one leg hopping around with two fingers and they're still Detroit." KATIE CARRERA (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Smoot Shoots to Be a Pro Bowler

REDSKINS | WASHINGTONPOST.COM

The Redskins canceled OTAs on Tuesday and instead held a team bowling trip. It turns out the lanes are a passion for a few players — especially cornerback Fred Smoot.

"I'm gonna attempt to go to the PBA [Professional Bowlers Association]," Smoot said the other day, sparking a laugh.

"You're laughing," he observed. "See, people did this years ago when I said I was going to go to the NFL, so it don't make me mad. I'm serious. I'm dead serious. I want to cross over to bowling after football."

The thing is, he sounded really serious.

"He's serious, but he's not serious," fellow Redskins cornerback and bowling partner Carlos Rogers said. I asked Rogers whether Smoot could really do this; "Hell, no," he said. "They would kill Smoot."

TONIL SANDY/TWP

Fred Smoot brings the same type of attitude and energy he uses on the football field to the bowling lanes. He fired a 212 during a day off from the Redskins' OTAs.

“Whatever you bowl, I’m gonna be one point better.”

—REDSKINS CB FRED SMOOT

I only knew to ask Smoot — who shot a 212 Tuesday — about his bowling career because Rogers had talked extensively about their bowling habits earlier during OTAs.

Rogers — who also sometimes bowls with the rapper Fabulous — said that he has 10 bowling balls (which he varies based on oil patterns), real bowling shoes and a personal high of 289. And Smoot?

"That boy's crazy," Rogers said.

"He bowls, and he might just lay on the ground kicking his feet, do some of everything, while he's bowling."

"It's not semi-planned, it's off the emotions of competition," Smoot said. "See, that's what I'm gonna bring to the PBA. I'm very intense, just like football, very animated. I'm gonna be the one selling tickets for the PBA."

I don't doubt that part of it. As for the bowling, what's his average? "I always tell people my average is one point better than theirs," Smoot said. "Whatever you bowl, I'm gonna be one point better."

What's his high? A 291, he said. What's his home alley? A Bowl America in Northern Virginia, where he's a regular and employees "know I'm gonna be there."

Does he really think he can do it? "I will be a professional," he said. "Once it becomes something I do, like, every day, I'm gonna get better and better." DAN STEINBERG (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Let's go bowling: Get a first-hand account of the Redskins' bowling trip on Tuesday from Chris Cooley | Chriscooley47.blogspot.com.

Brent Sutter said being away from his family led to his decision to quit Tuesday.

Devils Coach Cites Family for His Resignation

NHL | A homesick Brent Sutter resigned as the coach of the New Jersey Devils after just two seasons, citing family reasons and scoffing at the idea that some may criticize him for leaving so soon.

"I don't look at it like I am quitting on anything," Sutter said in a conference call from his home in Red Deer, Alberta. "I threw two years of my life and made a big commitment 3,000 miles away from where my life was and tried to do everything I possibly could to accomplish a goal. So, by me doing that, my life has suffered in other areas, and those areas to me are bigger than the game."

Sutter said the Devils' loss to the Carolina Hurricanes in Game 7 of their first-round Eastern Conference playoff series had nothing to do with his decision. (AP)

Nadal Holds Out Wimbledon Hope

Defending champion to try physical therapy for his ailing knees

TENNIS | Rafael Nadal will travel to London next Tuesday in hopes of defending his Wimbledon title despite having played with pain in his knees for months.

The top-ranked Spaniard said in a statement Tuesday that after two days of medical tests in Barcelona he has decided to try physical therapy to prepare for the tournament, which starts June 22.

"I am going to give my 200 percent to be ready for the most important tournament in the world," Nadal said. "I will not go out and play, especially on the Wimbledon Centre Court, if I am not 100 percent ready to play.

"I have two difficult weeks ahead of me, especially because I won't be doing what I like doing most, which is to play tennis."

Nadal withdrew from a grass-court warm-up event at Queen's Club this week. (AP)

Participants should:

- ◆ Be ages 18-65
- ◆ Be diagnosed with major depression and have anxiety symptoms.
- ◆ Be able to participate in a 12 week-outpatient study including a 1 patient stay of 7 days in Bethesda, MD.

In addition, all research participation is without cost.

- ◆ Monetary compensation for procedures.
- ◆ Transportation reimbursement provided.

Atendemos pacientes de habla hispana.

If you (or someone you know) have been diagnosed with major depression and have anxiety symptoms, you may be able to participate in a NIMH research study that seeks to decrease symptoms of depression and understand the causes of an anxious depression. Anxiety symptoms may include tension, worry, apprehension, restless sleep, or loss of appetite.

This study evaluates the effectiveness and safety of the study drug AZD2327, in the treatment of major depression and anxiety symptoms. This drug has a different mechanism of action from commonly used SSRIs (selective serotonin reuptake inhibitors) for anxiety and depression. There is the chance of receiving placebo in this study.

After study completion, NIMH will provide short-term follow-up care, and then you will return to the care of your own provider.

Kathy Griffin chats sans filter about her book and being permanently D-listed

Q&A | Kathy Griffin has won two Emmys for "Kathy Griffin: My Life on the D-List," now in its fifth season on Bravo. Her stand-up shows often sell out. Her 2008 comedy album, "For Your Consideration," was nominated for a Grammy (George Carlin won the award posthumously). And her memoir comes out in September.

But the 48-year-old actress-comedian insists she's on the outside looking in.

“What’s tough for me as a D-list celebrity is that it puts Speidi and me in the same category.”

Griffin talks about how she’s still a wannabe celebrity, Hollywood headlines and her upcoming book.

It's hard to believe you're still on the D-list.

I have proof, although I'm flattered at the suggestion that I could even be a C-minus. Recently, I was on tour and they delivered me a sandwich and it said Taffy Griffin. Now, I'd like to think that's maybe what they thought my stripper

NO HOLDS BARRED: Griffin is known for being outspoken and asserts that her new book will be a "barn-burner" that will make her more enemies than friends.

name was, but, no. My name was on the marquee. Sold-out show. Taffy Griffin. I'm on the D-list where I belong.

You've joked about many celebrities. Who are you most afraid of running into?

Whitney Houston, because she'll just cut you. ... I'm afraid of many, many celebrities. Most of them, really.

What do you think of Jon and Kate Gosselin (of the TLC show "Jon & Kate Plus 8")?

You have to admit, Jon doesn't seem to do much but whine. There's a lot of eye rolling and whining. I think the two of them have taken fame very well.

How about "Speidi," also known as Heidi Montag Pratt and Spencer Pratt?

What is tough for me as a D-list celebrity is that it kind of puts Speidi and me in the same category, and that hurts. That's a bitter pill for me to swallow.

When is your memoir coming out?

"Official Book Club Selection" is the title of my book because I'm trying to fool you into thinking it's part of the Oprah book club. It's not. Anyway, it comes out Sept. 29. And I believe it's going to be what you call a barn-burner. So, we'll see who's still talking to me after the book comes out.

Sonic Youth, aging with musical grace.

Old Indie Glory Is Reborn

Sonic Youth sounds like its former self on a stellar new album

MUSIC | After nearly 20 years, America's foremost indie-rock band is back on an independent record label.

Dissatisfied with Geffen, Sonic Youth left the label after its 2006 release, "Rather Ripped," and chose New York indie Matador to release its 16th album, "The Eternal." As it happens, it's Sonic Youth's most compelling album in years.

The band always has had a penchant for musical experimentation, but "The Eternal" follows the path of its best work by balancing the musicians' avant-garde tendencies with accessibility on songs that are taut, inventive and sometimes downright exhilarating.

Although it comes 21 years after "Daydream Nation," the band's touchstone record, "The Eternal" feels like a natural successor. It's rock 'n' roll the way it's meant to be: tuneful, raw and in your face.

ERIC R. DANTON (THE HARTFORD COURANT)

ROLES Future A-Lister Fresh off "The Hangover's" $45 million weekend box-office blowout, star Bradley Cooper is in talks to step into the role of Face for Fox's feature adaptation of "The A-Team." Cooper had been rumored for some time to play the dashing Lt. Templeton "Faceman" Peck, part of a group of framed, on-the-run war vets who get into adventures while evading the military. The hunt is on for actors to portray Hannibal, and characters B.A. Baracus and Howling Mad Murdock. (THE HOLLYWOOD REPORTER)

Funny and Kind Wins The Race

Todd Snider uses wit and sympathy to make his best album yet

MUSIC | Many of the characters Todd Snider sings about in "The Excitement Plan" are coping with tough times. That includes the tree that becomes a newspaper and doesn't even get recycled, instead winding up at the dump. Other songs are from prison, a war zone and sites of domestic dysfunction.

"The Excitement Plan" combines strong music and lighthearted lyrics.

As fans of Snider's would expect, he wrings considerable humor from these situations, yet there's an undercurrent of sweetness and sympathy that makes his wit that much wiser and warmer. And Snider wastes not one word or note, writing with an economy reminiscent of another droll tunesmith, Randy Newman. When Snider sings, "Not to change the subject, but have you seen my shoes?," even that non sequitur is a home run.

Speaking of which, "The Excitement Plan" includes the best song ever about drugs in baseball. There's also a murder confession, boozy flirting with Loretta Lynn and an examination of celebrity that Eddie Rickenbacker inspired. It's all a hoot.

Jim Keltner on drums, and Greg Leisz on steel guitar and dobro provide stellar support, and Don Was' sparse production properly puts the focus on the whimsical lyrics. By the end, even Snider is laughing, perhaps because he knows he has just recorded the finest album of his career. STEVEN WINE (AP)

YOUR LENQUETTE

Husband-and-wife team Amadou and Mariam have found a global audience.

May Harmony and Peace Be With You

Amadou and Mariam's new album is a joyous call for unity in the world through music

MUSIC | Amadou and Mariam's latest CD is called "Welcome to Mali," but it really should be called "Welcome to the World." It's the type of record that is so joyous and positive that it feels like it could bring together warring factions — take note, State Department — but it's really more of a sonic Evite to explore the diverse country in Northwest Africa.

"Welcome to Mali" is an invitation to meet the various people and, likewise, to meet the richness of the music happening in Mali from the different ethnic [groups]," guitarist Amadou said through translator Thierry Picouret.

Amadou and his singing wife, Mariam, met and fell in love at Mali's Institute for the Young Blind, and the duo recorded their new album in France, England, Senegal and their homeland. The music touches on Afro-pop, blues, electronica and more, and the rangy disc includes collaborations with everyone from kora player Toumani Diabate to Blur frontman Damon Albarn, who produced the CD's first single,

"Sabali," which plays around with African melodies before breaking into an almost Pet Shop Boys-like thump.

Patience has served Amadou and Mariam well. It wasn't until 2004's Manu Chao-produced "Dimanche à Bamako" — when the two were already in their 50s — that their music was heard by a wide swath of people outside the Francophone world. The record was an international smash hit.

And as corny as it may sound to our jaded ears, Amadou and Mariam's frequent collaborations are an outgrowth of their earnest desire to show the commonality among races, culture and music. "People need to understand that music is universal," Amadou said, "and I can imagine there will be lots of new collaborations in the future." CHRISTOPHER PORTER (EXPRESS)

Spiritual Infestation

It's weird to imagine acoustic punk, but Chris Johnston and Hannah Jones of Ghost Mice have done more: They play it. The duo — whose music includes a healthy dose of folk — sounds a lot like, say, the music of the Moldy Peaches or the Mountain Goats, but rawer. Their songs aren't as lyrically intellectual or sophisticated, but they retain a scratchy punk edge that's appealing in its own way. Catch them tonight at La Casa. F.Z.

Bravo's Crème de la Crème

Seasoned culinary personalities play for charity on 'Top Chef'

TASTY | "Top Chef Masters" (10 p.m., Bravo) offers a tip of the toque to "Iron Chef," pitting 24 world-famous chefs against each other in weekly competitions. The culinary masters play for prestige and prize money, but mostly for the chance to bestow their favorite charities with $500,000. The winner of each week's contest will compete in a final round that will determine who becomes the top master of the top masters, or something suitably superlative.

It's unclear how "Top Chef" fans will feel about this celebrity version. For starters, half the "fun" of the series is to see fledgling chefs flail under pressure. These guys

JAMIE TRUEBLOOD/BRVO

BEST IN THE BIZ: Tonight's "Top Chef Masters" lineup includes established chefs Jonathan Waxman, Roy Yamaguchi, Art Smith and Michael Cimarusti.

(and in the first round, they are all guys) tend to be cool under pressure. And since they've all received professional accolades and run successful businesses, they don't need to prove anything. They behave like gentlemen and don't play games or shout at each other or try to sabotage the competition. Reality television is all about the obnoxious behavior, so "Top Chef" fans accustomed to watching insecure egomaniacs behave like jerks may find this all a little too mature and uplifting. KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

tonight's lineup

(NOT SO) STIFF COMPETITION
The top 20 compete on SO YOU THINK YOU CAN DANCE (8 p.m., Fox).

PIANO MAN
Geoffrey Rush stars in the 1996 drama SHINE (8 p.m., IFC).

MUSICAL ICON
"American Masters" (9 p.m., PBS) airs the hour-long appreciation NEIL YOUNG: DON'T BE DENIED. "Denied" mixes vintage footage with interviews of the reclusive Young made especially for this 2008 BBC production.

GIVE IT TO US STRAIGHT MYTHBUSTERS (9 p.m., Discovery) looks into legends of sonic booms.

IDENTITIES REVEALED
Witness protection becomes a problem on a rerun of CSI: NY (10 p.m., CBS).

MORAL: WEAR PANTS
A nudist's fatal run raises eyebrows on THE UNUSUALS (10 p.m., ABC).

DIRTY DANCER
TRUE HOLLYWOOD STORY (10 p.m., E!) profiles Patrick Swayze.

LEFFTERIS PITAKIS/JAP

Patrick Swayze's life is the subject of tonight's "True Hollywood Story" on E!

YELL AT INSURANCE!!!
Billy offers a unique take on insurance reform on PITCHMEN (10 p.m., Discovery).

AFGHAN BUSINESS MAN
Saad Mohseni appears on THE DAILY SHOW WITH JON STEWART (11 p.m., Comedy Central). KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

Statue of Liberty Crown to Reopen

NEW YORK | People eager to climb to the Statue of Liberty's crown can start calling Saturday for reservations.

The crown is set to open July 4 after being closed since shortly after the Sept. 11, 2001, terrorist attacks.

The National Park Service says would-be visitors can seek reservations through the Web site Statuecruises.com or by calling 877-523-9849 beginning Saturday at 10 a.m. EDT.

The NPS says reservations will be first come, first served.

Crown tickets will cost $3 above the regular Liberty and Ellis islands admission charge, which is $12 for adults. Each customer can reserve up to four tickets.

For safety reasons, only 30 people per hour will be allowed up the narrow steps leading to the crown.

The statue's base, pedestal and outdoor observation deck reopened in 2004. (AP)

A visitor looks out over Old Fort Niagara in Youngstown, N.Y. This summer, the fort is marking the 250th anniversary of its siege.

Historic Perspectives

New York's Old Fort Niagara marks 250 years since its siege

DESTINATIONS | Fort Niagara still looks like a tough nut to crack.

The outer walls trace the same outline of the high earthworks that greeted a British-led army sent to conquer the fort 250 years ago this summer. The three-story "French Castle" looming over the western Lake Ontario shoreline is as imposing as when 3,500 redcoats, American colonials and Native American warriors laid siege to the fort in July 1759.

A significant part of the Old Fort Niagara State Historic Site 26 miles north of Buffalo remains much the same as it was in 1759, at the end of the French and Indian War, when the English finally captured the wilderness outpost after decades under French control. A powder magazine built in 1757 still stands, 250 years after surviving the British bombardment that led to the fort's surrender.

This summer, the fort is commemorating the 250th anniversary of the siege. During the July 4 weekend, more than 2,000 French and Indian War buffs from across the U.S. and Canada are expected to participate in the reenactment of the 1759 siege of Fort Niagara, which lasted nearly three weeks.

Standing on the fort's western ramparts facing Ontario, visitors can understand why this spot was the lynchpin in the string of French outposts that stretched from Illinois to Quebec. Any vessel trying to slip past the fort's river defenses would be within cannon range.

In clear weather, the skyline of Toronto, 33 miles to the north, is visible across the lake.

"One thing about forts and fort builders in the 18th century: They grabbed the best real estate with the best views," said Brian Leigh Dunningan, executive director of the fort from 1979 to 1996. CHRIS CAROLA (AP)

Time for Flexing His Mussels

Granville Moore's chef Teddy Folkman preps for a challenge

Teddy Folkman must have developed a taste for competition after besting Bobby Flay in a "Throw-down" challenge last year. The Granville Moore's (1238 H St. NE; 202-399-2546) executive chef has sharpened his knives to appear on the new season of "The Next Food Network Star," which debuted Sunday. He's also battling other local chefs Thursday night at a fundraiser for Brainfood ($75, Brain-food.org), a nonprofit that hooks up D.C. high-schoolers with culinary educations.

How did you get involved with Brainfood?

Seven years ago, I was working at the Reef, and my boss called in sick. So, I wound up standing in for him with a group of 13- to 16-year-olds. I served them bison, which they'd never had or heard of, and next thing I know, I'm hooked.

Who's a tougher crowd: the kids or Food Network folks?

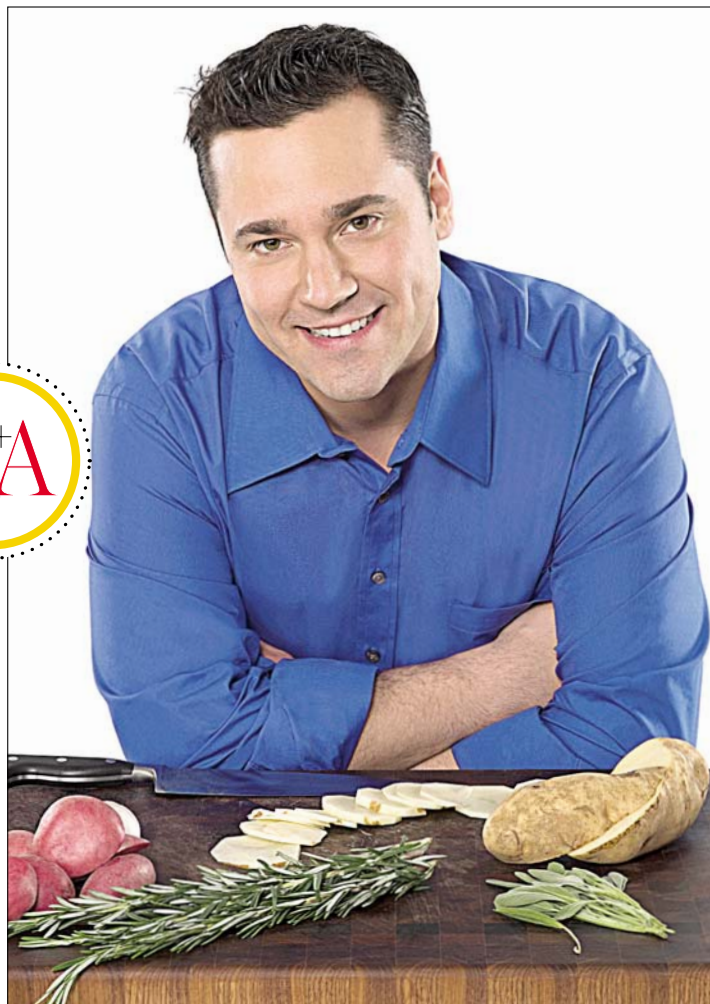

The stars of the Food Network. Kids don't critique. But keeping their attention can require more than showing them techniques.

What's your chef shtick?

You mean "my culinary point of view"? That's the technical term. But my shtick is coming from the mind of a chef rather than a cook. The Food Network has nailed down the way to teach people to cook. It's time now to grow up and teach the people who have kitchens nicer than most restaurants. I love sharing what I do, and I want people to be able to do it better than me.

Any tips for thinking like a chef?

One of the main things is starting

Teddy Folkman of Granville Moore's wants to be "The Next Food Network Star."

off by putting the same amount of importance to every step of preparation — everything from the dicing to the seasoning. Think about the ingredients. Say you're doing mirepoix, which is carrots, onions and celery. The recipe might say just to throw everything in together, but carrots take longer to cook. So, you should put those in first. And then there's the yelling and screaming you have to do.

“I love sharing what I do, and I want people to be able to do it better than me.”

Brainfood's Grill-Off sounds like something from the show, huh?

It does — it's "Iron Chef"-like. There are nine chefs, and we don't know what's in our pantry until it starts. The key is knowing how to manage a grill because we have to do everything on there. There's some really good food and some horrific outcomes.

Now that you're a pro at this format, what's your strategy?

First, I think about equipment. "What do I have?" Then, "What's the theme?" It helps that I have a weird sense of timing. My girlfriend calls me "the Count" because I can put a pizza in the oven, set the timer and then stand up from the couch just before it goes off.

What's your favorite thing to teach the kids?

It's the lesson that you should try everything once. We did mussels, and 80 percent of them had never tried them before. Afterward, one girl went to the store and saw they were just $2 a pound and made a meal for her whole family. Of course, sometimes the kids run away spitting and I'm thinking, "That's truffles!"

What's your dream food show?

I've come up with a couple ideas — one is a keeping-up type of show. Before it aired, you could download the recipe, get the ingredients and have everything ready to go. So, when I'm on, you're cooking in real time with me. When I'm dropping the halibut in the pan, you're dropping the halibut in the pan.

What would we see you cooking if we peeked into your home kitchen?

I will either have Hot Pockets, frozen pizza or I'll experiment with dishes I'm working on. Right now I'm on a Mexican kick, so I'm playing with shrimp stock and chipotle peppers. I just wish I had a dishwasher in there, because I go through too many pans.

Where do you hang out when you're not in the kitchen?

I love going to standard pubs and getting down and dirty bar food — like Reynold's Street Bar and Grill down the street from my place. And when I want something nicer, Cashion's Eat Place. John Manolatos was a mentor, and his food is so good. D.C. is a destination for foodies now, though, and the beer lists are getting awesome.

Well Granville Moore's is like beer heaven, right?

For me, it's more like purgatory. I'm a hop head, so I appreciate the craft of Belgian beer. But I like Natty Boh better. vicky HALLETT (EXPRESS)

Barcelona Hopping

■ If we had our way (or a trust fund), we'd summer in Seville, snarfing down garlicky seafood and carafes of Rioja. But even shepherds in isolated Andalusian hill towns know there's a recession on. Still, TAPAS: SENSATIONAL SMALL PLATES FROM SPAIN ($23, Chronicle) lets you thriftily make the country's trad nibbles, from patatas bravas (spicy potatoes) to peppery octopus. One section, "Shop and Serve Tapas," even advises on how to fix the teeny dishes almost instantly by stuffing jarred, roasted peppers with cheese or opening a can of olives. JENNIFER BARGER (EXPRESS)

'Cue Tips

■ Vegetarians (and dieters) may want to avert their eyes if presented with a copy of

BIG BOB GIBSON'S BBQ BOOK ($25, Clarkson Potter). The picture book-cum-guide to smoking, roasting and otherwise cooking the heck out of pigs, cows and other beasts isn't for the faint of heart (or high of cholesterol). Still, there are some good ideas from the legendary Big Bob Gibson Bar-B-Q in Alabama here, ranging from the unexpected (plant a drip pan in your coals to catch grease) to the ingenious (stuff peppers with baked beans for an unusual side dish). Still, the gruesome shots of pig roasting might be more likely to turn you into a vegan than a barbecue master. J.B.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're likely to respond favorably to a new idea that someone close to you brings your way as if by accident. Explore options freely.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A minor misunderstanding must not be allowed to fester. The sooner you clear things up, the sooner everyone can get back to business as usual.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You may be confused by a few developments that seem paradoxical or contradictory, but a closer look reveals a secret that explains everything.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Pay attention to dreams—those that come to you in sleep and daydreams. You may find the answers to a few key questions.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You may have to work harder than usual to maintain your independence and remain free of unfair bonds and expectations.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You are likely to find that it's more difficult to do those things that usually come quite naturally. It's only a phase.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) A closer look at an unexpected development is likely to yield only more questions. Now is no time to insist on clear information.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your problem-solving abilities are sure to serve you and others very well throughout the day. You have something to prove.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) A Cancer or Leo native is likely to claim a certain kinship with you, but you know a great deal actually separates you.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Others are sure to rely on you throughout the day, and don't let things become overwhelming to you. Keep your priorities in order.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're likely to receive clear and straightforward orders that you simply cannot follow. The issue is self-respect, of course.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You would benefit from a more open-minded approach to things that don't come naturally. Consider all options, no matter how unusual.

Prince’ Fans
Feel Spurned

DJ JAZZY JEFF stormed off the stage during a weekend performance in Kansas City, Mo., saying venue managers did not like the type of music he was playing. Officials with the Power & Light District say they just wanted the production crew to turn down the music because it was too loud for the sound system. In Twitter entries, Jazzy Jeff said the staff at the KC Live! pavilion stopped his show after about half an hour Saturday “for playin’ hip-hop.” Jazzy Jeff told the Kansas City Star that venue officials said his set “attracted the wrong kind of element.” (AP)

ABUSIVE MODELS
Speaking of, What’s Naomi
Campbell Doing Lately?

The “Real Housewives of New York City” star accused of punching her ex has settled the case. KELLY KILLOREN BENSIMON was arrested in March after Nicholas Stefanov told police she had struck him. As part of Monday’s agreement, the misdemeanor assault charge will be dropped if Bensimon stays out of trouble for a year. (AP)

Without real models to hurl invectives and cell phones, this will have to do.

STANDARDS
U.S. Chef Trash Talk Not Up to Code

An Australian TV host said Tuesday that foul-mouthed celebrity chef GORDON RAMSAY would never again be welcome on her show after he hurled insults and sexual references at her during a food and wine fair. Ramsay stunned the audience by unleashing a string of insults at journalist Tracy Grimshaw, saying she should “see Simon Cowell’s Botox doctor” and likening her to a pig. Ramsay repeated the insults Sunday and Monday at the same exposition. Later, he said he was only joking and that his comments had been blown out of proportion. (AP)
